SOUTHREY, see Bardney.

SPALDING.

SPALDING is a seaport, market and union town and parish, with a station on the East Lincolnshire branch of the Great Northern railway, 14 miles south from Boston, 45 south-east from Lincoln, 17 north from Peterborough, 20 east from Stamford, 10 east from Bourne and 93 from London, and is head of a county court district, in the Holland division of the county, wapentake and petty sessional division of Elloe, parts of Holland, rural deanery of West Elloe, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln. Spalding is a member of the port of Boston, and is the port for Stamford, Market Deeping and Crowland, having water communication with the whole county. The river Welland runs through the town, dividing it into two portions, the larger of which is on the north bank: it is navigable for vessels of 120 tons, by which means a trade in coal, oil-cake and timber is carried on: the course of the river, extending in a comparatively straight line for 2 miles, constitutes the remains of highest antiquity about Spalding, for the embankments on each side of the arm of the sea or Wash, beginning from the Marsh Rails, are undoubtedly the work of the Romans. The Great Northern railway has branch lines from here to Peterboro', Bourne and Stamford, Holbeach and Lynn, and also to March, the East Lincolnshire line giving access to Boston, Louth, Grimsby and Hull. The Great Eastern and Great Northern joint line hence to Doncaster, passes through Sleaford, Lincoln and Gainsborough, giving direct communication between the Eastern Counties and the north. A branch line of the Midland and Great Northern joint railways from Bourne to Spalding, constructed in 1893, connects the existing lines with the Eastern counties, including the ports of Lynn and Sutton Bridge, thus opening up direct communication with the Midlands. The High Bridge over the Welland was rebuilt in 1838; there are five other bridges, but for foot passengers only.

The town is not incorporated, but was under the control of a board of Commissioners under the "Spalding Improvement Act of 1853," but under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73), it is now governed by an Urban District Council of 15 members, and divided into five wards. An Act was passed in the year 1860 for supplying the town with water, which is conducted in pipes from Bourne; the works are close to the town, on the road to Pinchbeck; the capital is £13,000, raised in shares of £10 each. The town is lighted with gas from works the property of the Urban District Council.

The parish church of SS. Mary and Nicholas is a spacious building, originally Early English, and rebuilt in 1294, but with many alterations in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles, some later portions being of Post-Reformation date: the plan is complex and anomalous, but, in its original arrangement, it consisted of chancel with south aisle, nave with aisles, transept with eastern and western aisles, north porch and an embattled Perpendicular tower, with pinnacles and spire, attached to the western bay of the south aisle, and containing a clock and 8 bells: to this structure a large rectangular chapel, dedicated to SS. Mary and Thomas à Becket, has been added on the south-east, occupying a portion of the eastern aisle of the transept, and was in 1895 thrown into the body of the church: the eastern portion of the nave aisles was also doubled and a south porch with turret erected: the total length is 157 feet, and the width, at the transept, which corresponds in this respect to the double aisle of the nave, 92 feet 6 inches: there are monuments to the Johnson and other families, and nearly all the windows are stained, several being memorials: the church was extensively repaired and restored by the late Sir G. G. Scott R.A. in the year 1865, at a cost of £10,000, and further restored in 1886 at a cost of £900, including St. Thomas à Becket's or the Lady chapel, on the south side, restored by Canon E. Moore and Theophilus M. S. Johnson esq.: there are 1,200 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1538; marriages, 1550. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £582, with residence, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1899 by the Rev. Richard Bullock M.A. of Oriel College, Oxford, prebendary of Lincoln and rural dean of West Elloe.

The ecclesiastical parish of St. John the Baptist was formed December 1, 1874, from the civil parishes of Spalding and Pinchbeck. The church at Hawthorn Bank, erected in 1875 by Miss Johnson at a cost of £12,000, from designs by R. J. Withers esq. Adam street, Adelphi, London, is a building of stone, in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, crypt, vestry, organ chamber, south porch and a turret containing a clock and 2 bells: there are 450 sittings. The register dates from the year 1875. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £360, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Lincoln, and held since 1897 by the Rev. Grant William Macdonald M.A. of St. Mary Hall, Oxford.

The ecclesiastical parish of St. Paul, FULNEY, was formed Dec. 21, 1877, from the civil parish of Spalding. The church, together with a vicarage and Sunday school, was erected in 1880, the church at a cost of £16,000, and the whole at a cost of £40,000, defrayed by Miss Charington, who also endowed it with £300 a year, £50 being added by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners. The church is a building of red brick and Ancaster stone, in the Early English style, after designs by the late Sir G. Gilbert Scott R.A. and consists of clerestoried nave, aisles, vestry, south porch and a western tower with pinnacles and spire 129 feet high, containing a clock and 8 bells: there are sedilia and piscina: the font is of Mansfield Woodhouse stone with Purbeck marble shafts, and the pulpit is of carved oak on a stone base: there are sittings for 350 persons. The register dates from the year 1880. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £350, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Lincoln and the vicar of Spalding jointly, and held since 1878 by the Rev. Richard Guy Ash M.A. of Wadham College, Oxford, and chaplain of Spalding union.

The church of St. Peter, in the Abbey gardens, is a building of red brick in the Early English style, erected in the year 1875-6 at a cost of £10,000, from designs by the late Sir G. Gilbert Scott R.A. and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, vestry, north porch, organ chamber and a turret containing one bell: the east window is stained: this church is served from that of SS. Mary and Nicholas: there are 500 sittings.

The Catholic church, dedicated to the Immaculate Conception and St. Norbert, in Henrietta street, built in 1876 and enlarged in 1879, is a plain edifice of red brick in the Early English style, consisting of nave and a turret containing one bell: some of the windows are stained. In Sept. 1908 a lady chapel in the form of a grotto, a copy of the famous grotto of Lourdes, and the work of a Belgian artist, M. Jacques Coomans, was dedicated.

Here is a Friends' meeting-house, a Congregational chapel in Pinchbeck road, erected in 1821, seating 500 persons, with a branch chapel in Holbeach road, built in 1841, and having 100 sittings; the Baptist chapel, in Chapel lane, founded in 1646, has sittings for 650 persons, and has a branch chapel on Spalding Common, seating 200; there are also Primitive Methodist, Wesleyan Methodist, United Methodist and Calvinistic chapels, and meeting-rooms for the Christadelphians and the Plymouth Brethren.

The Cemetery, about half a mile from the town, was formed at a cost of about £4,500, including the purchase of land and the erection of the two chapels: an additional piece of land, about 2 acres in extent, was purchased in 1876, and the whole is now under the control of the Urban District Council.

The Corn Exchange, erected in 1855-6 by the former Improvement Commissioners at a cost of nearly £3,000, is a building in the Elizabethan style, with an illuminated clock: the exchange-room, which is 83 feet long and 43 broad, is fitted with stands for corn merchants, and is provided with a permanent proscenium for theatrical and other entertainments: close to the Exchange is the Butter Market, opened in 1857, and since much enlarged and improved.

The Sessions House, in the Sheep Market, was erected in the year 1842, at a cost of £6,000: quarter and petty sessions are held here for the parts of Holland.

The Masonic Hall is in Pinchbeck street; the lodge meets once a month.

Ayscoughfee Hall, on the banks of the Welland, is a picturesque and ancient mansion; it has, with its gardens, been acquired by the Urban District Council for the use of the public for ever.

The Drill Hall for the F Company 4th Territorial Force Battalion of the Lincolnshire Regiment, in the Sheep market, was erected in 1890, and is a red brick building with stone facings, standing on ground 125 by 48 feet: it consists of a large hall about 75 by 45 feet, with a fixed stage, armoury, orderly and other rooms; the hall is also let for concerts, dramatic and other entertainments, for which it is well adapted.

The town carries on a trade in corn, meal, flour, timber and cake. There are several steam and wind mills for grinding corn, and the cattle food and spice works of Messrs. Osmond and Son. Large quantities of fruit and vegetables are also sent over the Great Northern and Great Eastern railways to the London markets and manufacturing districts.

The Town Commissioners purchased the market tolls, formerly belonging to the lord of the manor, for the sum of about £4,000; the market place was paved with granite in 1876, and the sheep market with asphalt, and permanent iron pens erected.

The market day is Tuesday for corn, cattle, sheep, fowls, vegetables and dairy produce; and on Saturday, vegetables and fruits are sold.

Five yearly fairs are held for cattle and merchandise, viz., the first Tuesday after Lincoln fair (April), last Tuesdays in June and August, and September 25th, and on the Friday before the London great Christmas market; also a statute fair for hiring servants in May.

In Hall place is a fountain, the gift of the late Miss M. A. Johnson.

The Police Station was erected in 1858, at a cost of £1,400.

There are four banks, and also a savings bank.

There are also two hotels.

The "Lincolnshire, Boston and Spalding Free Press" is published every Tuesday by the Spalding Free Press Printing and Publishing Co. Limited; and the "Spalding Guardian" every Saturday, by R. Winfrey.

The Club House, in Broad street, belongs to the Spalding Club Company Limited, which has a capital of £2,500, in 250 shares of £10 each; it was opened in August, 1875, and contains reading, smoking and billiard rooms; there are about 140 members.

The Christian Association and Literary Institute, in Spring gardens, opened in the year 1875, is a building of red brick in the French Gothic style, and contains lecture hall, reading and class rooms, with a library of 1,600 volumes, and a residence for the caretaker.

The Spalding Mechanics' Institute, in Bed Lion street, established in 1845, contains reading rooms and a library of nearly 1,800 books; during the year 1888 the library was remodelled and the sum of £50 expended on new books.

The Spalding Gentlemen's Society is an antiquarian and literary society, founded by Maurice Johnson esq. then residing at Ayscoughfee Hall, in this town, a man of considerable note and one of the founders and the first librarian of the Society of Antiquaries of London. The Spalding society was founded in 1710, seven years before the formation of the larger society. Among its earliest members were Sir Isaac Newton, Dr. William Stukeley, the well-known antiquary, George Vertue, engraver to the Society of Antiquaries and one of the first members of the Academy of Painting, Sir Hans Sloane, president of the Royal Society, Collins, the landscape painter, Browne Willis, the antiquary, the poets Pope, Gray and Addison, and Roger and Samuel Gale. The society has acquired a valuable collection of ancient books, manuscripts and engravings, as well as a small museum: it has been reorganized, and now numbers over 70 members; members meet monthly in the board room of the Johnson Hospital, when papers are read on antiquarian and literary subjects, and articles of great interest are often exhibited.

Gamlyn's Almshouses, for 34 men and women, founded by Sir John Gamlyn in the year 1650, were rebuilt in 1844 in the Gothic style: each inmate receives 3s. 6d. weekly and one ton of coals yearly. The almshouses founded by William Willesby have been taken down, and a sum of £60 is now equally divided amongst six persons, male or female, annually. Mrs. E. Sparke's almshouses for six widows were rebuilt in 1812; each inmate receives 3s. 6d. weekly. The charities for distribution amount to about £200 yearly.

The Johnson Hospital, built in 1881, and partially endowed from bequests of the late Misses E. A. and M. A. Johnson (from whom the hospital takes its name), at a cost of £4,000, is a plain building of red brick, faced with Bath stone, in the Domestic Gothic style, and contains six wards, three for males and three for females, and has 21 beds.

The Spalding Infirmary and Dispensary, established in 1839, has rooms in the Johnson Hospital; the number of patients attended for the year ending March, 1900, was about 350.

Spalding, as a town, existed before Crowland, and its central position in the Mercian kingdom led to the erection of a castle, the site of which was at the north entrance to the town on the east side; some vestiges of the moat may be distinguished, and a fetter-lock preserved on the spot is believed to have been the veritable lock of the castle of Ivo Taillebois, Earl of Angers, and nephew of the Conqueror, who resided here, and, dying about 1114, was buried in the conventual church.

There are some 15th century remains of the out-buildings of the ancient Benedictine priory of SS. Mary and Nicholas, founded in 1051 by Thorold de Bokenhale, lieutenant of his father, the Duke of Mercia; these are now incorporated into dwelling houses, and consist of a turret staircase, the dormitory, an octagonal turret or prison and portions of the moat: at its dissolution there were 20 monks, and revenues estimated at £767.

"Fulney Farm house," 1½ miles south-east from the town, is a very ancient structure, erected in 1080, and is supposed to have been the dairy farm of the monastery; it is built with a mixture of bricks, stone and concrete, its walls being 3 feet thick, and in capital preservation; the upper part of the house is supported on a groined lower story, and was at one time approached by a stone staircase outside the building on the south side; there are still traces of the moat and fishpond, by which the building was surrounded; it is at present occupied by a farm bailiff.

Fulney House, 1½ miles east of the town, is a handsome brick mansion, surrounded by extensive pleasure grounds.

John Swan esq. and Joe George Calthrop esq. are lords of Spalding manor; Richard Buckworth esq. of Cockley Cley, Norfolk, is lord of the manor of Spalding Crowland; E. V. H. Blyton esq. steward. The land is mostly held by small freeholders.

The land produces large quantities of wheat, oats and market garden produce, also roots, beans and peas; there is also a fair proportion of fine grazing land. The area is 10,701 acres of land, 51 of water, 35 of tidal water and 24 of foreshore; rateable value, £47,649; the population in 1901 was 9,385, including 9 officers and 90 inmates in the workhouse and 13 in the Johnson Hospital.

The population of the Urban District wards in 1901 was:—Central, 1,803; East, 1,889; North, 1,758; South, 1,867; West, 2,068.

The population of the ecclesiastical parishes in 1901 was:—Central, 1,803; East, 1,889; North, 1,758; South, St. John the Baptist, 2,112; St. Paul, 551.

WYKEHAM is an estate in Spalding parish, 3 miles north-east from the parish church, and adjoins the parish of Weston St. Mary: here are the remains of a domestic chapel built by Clement Hatfield, prior of Spalding, and finished in 1311 and dedicated to St. Nicholas; it is an exact parallelogram of ashlar, 43 by 22 feet, disposed in three bays, marked by deeply projecting buttresses: the east window is Perpendicular, but the rest are either imperfect or bricked up; a lychnoscope and sedilia are also covered in a similar way, and on either side of the east window are two elegant niches: at the south-west corner is an excellent stone spiral staircase, which communicated with the domestic buildings. Wykeham chapel is a sinecure donative benefice, endowed with 12½ acres of glebe, net yearly value £15, in the gift of the governors of Spalding Grammar School, and is at present (1909) vacant. The trustees of the late Robert Everard esq. are the owners of the Wykeham estate.

SPANBY is a parish and village, 2 miles south from Aswarby station on the Bourne and Sleaford branch of the Great Northern railway, $3\frac{1}{2}$ north-east from Folkingham and 6 south from Sleaford, in the North Kesteven division of the county, parts of Kesteven, Aveland wapentake, Sleaford petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Aveland No. 1, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln. The church of St. Nicholas, rebuilt in 1882, at a cost of £765, is a small building of red brick with red Ancaster stone dressings in the Early English style, consisting of apsidal chancel, nave, west porch and a bell turret containing one bell: there are 65 sittings. SPILSBY is a small market town on the road from Boston to Louth, in a pleasant position on an acclivity overlooking a vast tract of marsh and fen land, extending southward to the Boston Deep, with a terminal station on a branch of the Great Northern railway, and is 17 miles north-east from Boston, 10 east-south-east from Horncastle, 16 south-by-east from Louth, 8 south-west from Alford, 9 north-west from Wainfleet and 126 from London, and is the head of a union and county court district and petty sessional division, in the South Lindsey division of the county, parts of Lindsey, east division of Bolingbroke soke, rural deanery of Hill No. 2, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln. The Spilsby and Firsby branch of the East Lincolnshire Railway Company was opened in 1868. The town is well built and consists chiefly of two streets and the Market place, which is intersected in the centre by a row of houses. It is lighted with gas from works in the Ashby road, erected in 1854, and belonging to a company.

A new water supply was opened in July, 1908, by the North East Lincolnshire Water Co.; the pumping station is in Hundleby and the reservoir, which has a capacity of 75,000 gallons, is on Raithby Hill, the water descending by gravitation to Spilsby; the supply is of excellent quality and practically inexhaustible.

The church of St. James is an edifice of green sandstone and brick, chiefly in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, double nave with clerestory, north aisle, north or Willoughby chapel and an embattled Perpendicular western tower with pinnacles and containing a clock and 6 bells: the earliest portions of the structure are the nave arcades, dating apparently from the early part of the 14th century, to which period the arcade opening into the chapel seems also to belong: about the middle of the same century the south aisle was removed, and a large secondary nave erected, of which the eastern portion constitutes the present chancel, the remainder forming about half of the existing nave: in the 14th century there was a chapel here dedicated to the Holy Trinity, of which the arcade of the Willoughby chapel is supposed to be a fragment: the church contains a very interesting series of monuments commemorating several of the most distinguished members of the house of Willoughby including: 1. An altar-tomb of stone, adorned with shafts originally supporting a canopy; on the upper slab lie the effigies of John, 2nd Baron Willoughby de Eresby, and Joan (Roseline), his wife; the figure of the former is in armour with shield and sword, and has the legs crossed; the lady wears a coverchief and a flowing mantle over a close fitting dress; Lord Willoughby was knighted in 1326-7, and took part in the Scottish and Flemish wars, including the relief of Aiguillon, 1345-6 and the battle of Crecy, August 26th, 1346; he died in 1349: 2. A fine altar-tomb of stone and supporting a finely carved alabaster effigy in full armour of John, 3rd Baron Willoughby de Eresby, the head resting on a mantled helmet and the feet on an animal, and around the cornice of the upper slab are little figures of monks holding scrolls, staves and rosaries; this baron is mentioned by Froissart as one of the most distinguished knights of his time; he fought most valiantly at Poitiers, September 19th, 1356; took part in the subsequent invasion of France by Edward III. and the Black Prince, and died in 1372: 3. An altar-tomb of alabaster; on the coped slab above are recumbent effigies of Robert, 4th Baron Willoughby de Eresby, ob. 1396, and his 3rd wife, Elizabeth, daughter and heiress of Lord Latimer, and widow of Lord Nevill, of Raby; the figure of the baron is in full armour, with the head resting on a helmet surmounted by the Willoughby crest, and the feet on a lion; that of the lady is very richly habited, the head resting on two cushions supported by figures of monks, and at the feet three pet dogs: 4. A brass, with effigy, to Margaret, daughter of William, Lord Zouch, and 2nd wife of Robert, 4th Baron Willoughby de Eresby; around the figure are eight shields of arms, and the whole is inclosed by a marginal inscription, which gives the date of her death as October 18th, 1391: 5. A remarkable fine triple canopied brass with effigies of William, 5th baron Willoughby de Eresby, ob. 1410, and Lucy, daughter of Lord Strange, of Knockyn, his first wife; the figure of the baron is in rich armour,
